Seek Recruits For Police Vacancies

Three Resign To Enter Service; Consider Pay Increases

Paced with three more resignations from men entering the armed services, Lower Merion Township took steps this week to augment its police department by advertising for more recruits.

In contrast to a similar advertisement inserted six months ago the annual salary for beginners has been raised to $1680, which, using this as a base, means more money for men as they are advanced.

Although there is yet to take concrete shape, there is a growing feeling among township commissioners that there will have to be a corresponding increase in the higher brackets of police pay. Many of the men have left for better paying jobs in war industrial plants, and several of the commissioners feel that inducements should be increased at home. Older men who received a ten percent pay cut during the depression contend that even under Lower Merion's extensive plan of departmental development they have received only about five percent of it back. Meanwhile the industrial wage index has exceeded what it was before the depression.

The following three men are entering the service:

On Saturday, Patrolman Joseph W. Shank, 1112 Lancaster av., Rosemont, will leave for Santa Ana, Cal., to join the U. S. Army Air Corps. He has been granted a leave of absence for the duration.

On Monday next, Patrolman Leslie Martin, who lives at 523 Old Lancaster rd., Haverford, will leave for a training depot of the U. S. Marine Corps.

On August 8 or thereabouts, Patrolman Joseph Sweeney, School av., West Manayunk, will leave for the New Cumberland, Md., reception center, having been recalled by the U. S. Army.

In advertising for recruits the notice says that a competitive examination will be held at the Ardmore Public School on August 21 at 7:30 P. M. Application blanks may be obtained at the office of the Civil Service Commission, Township Building, Ardmore, and must be filed at the office of the Commission not later than August 8.

Narberth School Ready for Air Raid, Principal Reports

Precautions that have been taken at the Narberth School against air raids were outlined by W. J. Drennen, principal, in his annual report to the School Board.

These include regular air raid and fire drills and the preparation of first floor halls in the School as an air raid shelter. Equipment and arrangement of the shelter includes wire screens, taped windows, sand, shovels, and First Aid Kits.

Members of the faculty have been given instruction on gas and bombs. In addition, three teachers have taken the training course in First Aid.

All children of the School have been fingerprinted by volunteers of the Lower Merion Defense Council.

Teachers of the School have given the children detailed instruction as to what to do if there is an air raid.

Former Newspaper Staff Photographer Wins Stripes at Camp

A Philadelphia soldier who has been in the Army three months, has been made a corporal at Camp Wheeler. He is Private Chester Chess, who now wears two stripes on his job with the Post Plans and Training officer.

Corporal Chess was a prominent studio photographer in Philadelphia, operating a business at 2228 Delancey st. He was drawn into the Army under the Selective Service System April 27th and was transferred to Camp Wheeler, the Nation's largest infantry replacement training center.

In Philadelphia he was best known for his work in the Main Line communities as staff photographer for the newspapers. Our Town of Narberth, Haverford Township News, Main Line of Ardmore and Bala-Cynwyd and Merion News.

Red Cross Warns Letter Writers

Be careful what you write to Uncle Sam's fighting men, warns Miss Bessie I. Patterson, director of Home Service for the Southeastern Pennsylvania Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Too many times, she states, the folks at home pour fourth petty family problems in letters to their boys in camp or at the front. The result in some cases is the demoralization of a brave soldier.

So the next time you write, urges Miss Patterson, be cheerful, and if you cannot be cheerful, be factual. A demoralizing letter, whether or not intentionally so, can be as damaging to the armed forces as an enemy bullet.

Fort Dix Tossers Defeat All-Stars

Soldiers Score Five Runs in 8th for 7-4 Victory

Waiting until the last minute to open fire with their heaviest guns, the soldiers from Fort Dix, N. J., pushed over five runs in the eighth inning to hand the Main Line League All-Stars a 7-4 baseball setback at Manoa Tuesday night.

Threatening weather held the attendance to approximately 1000 fans who contributed $329.01 (net $238.16) toward the Army Emergency Relief Fund.

The game was highly entertaining all the way with Fort Dix living up to its reputation by playing sparkling, heads-up baseball. It was the 26th victory for the soldiers in 31 games.

Until the eighth it looked as if the All-Stars would be the victors. Bob Allison, Manoa hurler who twirled the first three innings, and his successor, Bill O'Donnell, Gladwyne ace, had limited the soldiers to two hits up to that time, each allowing one. And the All-Stars had tallied two runs in the fourth and single markers in the fifth and sixth to gain a 4-1 lead.

However, O'Donnell suddenly lost his stuff in the eighth and the soldiers promptly cracked out four straight hits to tie the score. Ray Presutti, slim Gladwyne hurler, was rushed to O'Donnell's rescue with three runs in, one on and none out. He proceeded to walk the first two batters to face him and then third baseman Cieslak rammed a long single to center to drive in the two deciding runs.

Stoeton Field, a rugged right hander making his first start for Fort Dix, drove in two of his team's runs with two hits. He was steady on the mound, allowing just seven hits, the same number collected by the All-Stars.

Jack Wallaesa, who played with the A's earlier this season before being drafted, wowed the fans with several rifle throws from shortstop, but he was unable to get a hit. He grounded out to second and twice fled out to right field in his three official trips to the plate. He walked his fourth time up and tallied the game's final run.

The All-Stars, handicapped on offense by the absence of Joey Burns and Buddy Walker, Narberth stars, had their hits well scattered. Duffy, of Gladwyne, accounted for the only extra base hit, a double in the second inning which scored the first All-Star run.

It was the second appearance of the All-Stars, who previously had defeated the U. S. Marines, 14-1, in a game for Navy relief at Narberth.

Lower Merion Once Had A Democrat On Governing Board—And Liked It

Demolition of Old Main Line Mansion Recalls Days When Percival Roberts Took the Late Andrew J. Cassatt To Court

With the Main Line's one-sided political picture, a Democratic commissioner on the Lower Merion Township governing board would startle the Union League in these days.

But demolition of the 66-room house of the late Andrew J. Cassatt at Haverford recently recalls a period in Lower Merion's history when year after year the voters elected a Democrat as one of their supervisors.

Cassatt was one of a succession of presidents of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company who lived in Lower Merion. But he made his impression on the life of the community to a much greater degree than any of the other presidents.

For 19 years, beginning back in the 1880's, when he was a vice president of the railroad company, he served as a road supervisor of the township, and in that capacity he was instrumental in causing the township to pioneer in the improvement of highways.

His chief recreation was driving. He delighted in good horses, and farther out the Main Line, near Berwyn, he had a stock farm where there were numerous notable horses.

But in the 1880's only a few highways were conducive to the enjoyment of driving. So Cassatt became a candidate for road supervisor. That was long before the first-class township form of government was instituted, and the road supervisors were virtually the only executive officials in townships.

Lower Merion was strongly Republican. Cassatt was a Democrat. Nevertheless he was elected. Many Republicans supported him, and his re-election followed regularly as long as he would hold office. And this was in spite of the fact that taxes had to be increased from time to time to make possible the macadamizing of the highways.

Of course, Cassatt's services were supervisory and advisory. Elsewhere road supervisors usually worked with their men in repairing the roads.

When decisions were once made, Cassatt left to his associate supervisors the responsibility of putting the decisions into effect.

For some years the other supervisor was Samuel Duncan. When commended for his good work in bringing about highway improvements, Cassatt remarked: "There really was not much for me to do except to damn Duncan."

Once Cassatt and Duncan were arrested because of the way they carried on their road improvements, and they had to stand trial in court in Norristown.

The prosecutor was the owner of another great Lower Merion estate, Percival Roberts. The large Roberts house was demolished several years ago.

The case arose from the fact that to facilitate certain road work the supervisors closed a road crossing the Pennsylvania Railroad on a bridge near Bala. Nowadays it is the rule to close highways completely when improvements are in progress. Then it was the rule to leave a lane open for traffic.

As Cassatt was an official of the Pennsylvania Railroad, suspicion was aroused that the closing of the road over the bridge was connected with some hocus-pokus in which the railroad would profit.

The trial took place in December, 1886. Leading lawyers of the county bar represented the two sides — District Attorney John W. Bickel and Gilbert R. Fox and Son for the prosecution and Charles Hunsicker and Joseph Fornace for the supervisors.

There was not much dispute as to the facts, but the lawyers spent many hours in arguing the legal details.

The outcome was a verdict of acquittal. And Roberts was required to pay the costs.

The supervisors had no control over the main highway running through Lower Merion. That was the Lancaster Turnpike, then still owned by a corporation which collected toll from travelers and spent as little as possible for improvements on the road. To get around this obstacle, Cassatt and some of his friends bought a controlling interest in the stock of the company, and while toll was still collected travelers had the benefit of a much better road.

Mr. Cassatt made his influence felt in his home community in numerous ways besides improving the roads.

In 1884 he led a movement that resulted in the establishment of Haverford Grammar School, as a preparatory school for Haverford College.

For some years he was president of the Merion Cricket Club, near his home, and he also was president of the Radnor Hunt.

The homestead remained in possession of the family until 1936, when Mr. Cassatt's daughter, Mrs. Eliza Foster Stewart, sold Cheswood and the adjoining Stewart property for $350,000. The two tracts comprised 53 acres.

Native Flora Needed For School Districts Wild Flower Preserve

In the wooded area of the 18-acre tract of ground across Montgomery av. from the Junior High School in Ardmore, the Lower Merion Board of School Directors is planting wild flowers, shrubs, and trees which are indigenous to Pennsylvania. The purpose is to provide material for observation by science classes of the high schools and to enable the public to identify native flora.

A modest beginning is being made at the present time and contributions of plants will be accepted from individuals who have extra native flowers, shrubs, or trees on their properties. Just now dogwood, rhododendron, laurel, wild azalea, native ferns, native columbine, hepatica, merensia, blue phlox and partridge berry are needed. The school authorities are prepared for transportation and transplanting of any specimens contributed.

Stoeton Field, a rugged right hander making his first start for Fort Dix, drove in two of his team's runs with two hits. He was steady on the mound, allowing just seven hits, the same number collected by the All-Stars.

Blood Bank Used In Trolley Crash

In the recent trolley accident near Norristown the blood bank of the Red Cross came in for its first local emergency use.

Plasma rushed to the hospitals where victims of the collision were being treated is credited with saving at least half a dozen lives, and giving others among the injured a better chance for recovery.

While the blood bank is designed primarily for use in treatment of members of the armed forces, some supplies are always available for domestic emergencies. Thus the more than 41,000 local blood donors — and more are constantly needed — may justifiably feel that they played a very definite role in lifesaving.

Boy Scouts Given Commando Drill

List Awards of Lower Merion and Haverford Troops

Over 835 Boy Scouts of Camp Delmont, during the past two weeks, have been going through an intensive "Commando" training program, featuring rope climbing, swinging across a stream on a rope, wall scaling, running a mile and other physical tests. Scouting at Delmont this summer is training these scouts in self reliance.

During the recent State blackout the entire camp was organized in the standard civilian defense council set-up. Each scout was assigned a definite responsibility. First Aid, Messenger, Fire Wardens, Air Raid Wardens, were some of the functional phases undertaken. Camp officials were very much satisfied in the ability of the camp to carry on their program, and yet develop such a protective arm for the camp.

READING & WRITING

BY Edwin Seaver AND Robin McKinnon

LIFE in a small town court of justice may be pretty dull most of the time. But when there is a sensational murder trial up, the picture changes quickly. Overnight the small town becomes spotlighted in the national imagination. And during the time of the trial, the lives of all the people in the town are affected by what is going on in the courtroom.

JAMES GOULD COZZENS

This is what happens in James Gould Cozzens' new novel "The Just and the Unjust," which the Book-of-the-Month Club has made its August selection.

To gather material for his book, the author spent some two years in small town court sessions. He doesn't say what town it was, but it really doesn't matter because Childersville, of which he writes, is so typically American that it might be in almost any of our forty-eight states.

In the current issue of the Book-of-the-Month Club News, the noted critic Henry Seidel Canby has this to say about "The Just and the Unjust": "The author's complete knowledge of his people and his method of taking the reader behind scenes—behind all the scenes—makes this book one of the most interesting studies of how fine minds, and dull minds, and criminal minds, and just average minds, react to the sudden explosion of crime in our midst, and the problem of what justice is anyhow—that I have ever read."

One of the most entertaining books of this month or any month, is "The World at My Finger Tips." It's the autobiography of a man who is almost totally blind, and if you think blind people don't get any fun out of life you should read this book.

Here's a typical anecdote. It has to do with Morris Frank, the first sightless person to have a Seeing Dog in America. Mr. Frank once spoke to a man hurrying along a busy New York street. "Say, can you tell me where the Amalgamated Bank is?"

"Yeah. It's right in front of you," the man growled as he sailed by. "What's the matter? Are you blind?"

Mr. Frank was still in a quandary when a woman stepped up to him and said: "Can you tell me where I can find the Amalgamated Bank?"

"Yeah," he said. "It's right in front of you. What's the matter? Are you bli'nd?"

"Th' Mangrove Coast," by the United Press newspaperman, Karl Bickel, tells the romantic story of Florida's West Coast from the days of Ponce de Leon. Mr. Bickel found that the backwoods people who live there now have a Buddhist attitude toward life. In the end they know everything will turn out all right; for the present there is no rushing. Understanding this, Mr. Bickel forbore to interrogate them too closely on their habits and thoughts. He says he knew he would run into the same difficulty which a Northern lady encountered when she asked her Negro cook how she made a certain dish. Bessie smiled affably. "Deed I don't know, Ma'am," she said. "Sometimes when I makes it again I'm gonna watch how I does it. Then I'll tell yo' Ma'am." But she never did.

A WAR-TIME NECESSITY

War has put heavy loads on telephone lines. We cannot add to our facilities, for the materials needed to do so are going into the shooting side of the war. We must make the most of what we have. More people must share party lines.

If you are on a party line, you make it possible for others to have service.

So share the line. Don't make unnecessary calls. Before you call, think what you are going to say so that calling back will be unnecessary. Keep your conversations as short as possible.

Cooperation on party lines is more than a matter of courtesy—it's a war-time necessity.

Bala-Merion Women Help In Work Of Navy League

Residents of Bala-Merion are joining wholeheartedly in the war-time work of the Navy League.

Sewing for Bryn Mawr Hospital under the direction of Mrs. Wilmer Crowell, a group of women including many from this section has completed 40 dozen articles. In addition to sewing on garments for American boys and girls, they collect garments in first class condition to send to the West coast for refugees arriving in San Francisco.

Another phase of the "Nells" work is the manning of War Bond booths in Woolworth's store, Ardmore, the Ardmore, Suburban, Narberth and Egyptian Theatres and at Strawbridge and Clothier's. The latter booth will re-open in September under the direction of Bernardine Chase.

During June the Navy League sold $12,388 worth of War Bonds and Stamps at these booths.

Entertainment for enlisted recruits at the Seamen's Institute, Philadelphia, is arranged by a group including Mrs. R. M. Town, Mrs. Wilmer Crowell, Mrs. Romaine C. Hoffman and Mrs. E. B. Dudley, Jr., under the supervision of Mrs. Thomas C. Barton, chairman.

On Tuesdays, three members of the local league, which has its headquarters in Narberth, are on duty at the U.S.O. lounge in the 30th Street Station of the Pennsylvania Railroad. They are Mrs. Robert Town, Mrs. A. Driscoll and Miss Ruth Gordon.

Spending many days each week at the Merchant Marine Library, Pier 4, South, are Navy League workers Mrs. Thomas McConnell, Mrs. Norman P. Pernon and Mrs. R. M. Town, all of Cynwyd; Miss Marjorie Lekker, Overbrook and Mrs. Raymond Carrick, Ardmore. They ask that anyone having books they can spare donate them to the library, as there is a great need.

HOME DEFENSE TO BE TOPIC OF FIRST FALL JUNIOR CLUB MEETING

On October 15, the Fall Fashion Show and bridge party will be held under the auspices of the Membership Committee with prizes for each table and refreshments.

At its November 19 meeting, the Junior Club will entertain members of the Senior Club at a musicale. The Music Committee will be in charge of this meeting.

H. W. Scott Heads New Coast Patrol

Plan to Protect Shipping Announced by Rear Admiral Watson

Harold W. Scott, 410 Baird rd., Merion, vice president of the Pennsylvania Company for Insurance on Lives and Granting Annuities will serve as commander of a newly organized Coast Guard Reserve to patrol the Philadelphia waterfront. It was announced this week. He was a Navy lieutenant in the last war.

Plans for the formation of a volunteer regiment of 152 officers and one thousand men to guard shipping here were revealed by Rear Admiral A. E. Watson, commandant of the Fourth Naval District. Enrollment will be open to men of all ages who are deferred from the draft.

The men will pay their own expenses, including cost of uniforms and will serve usually one day a week. They may be called on for longer periods in emergency.

Headquarters of the organization, officially called the "Philadelphia Plan," will be in the Packard Building, 15th and Chestnut sts., Philadelphia. Applications may be mailed there.

Idea for the new security plan came from Donald Jenks, supervisor of port conditions for the Division of Railway Transportation of the Office of Defense Transportation.

Although soldiers now patrol Delaware av. and Coast Guardsmen stand watch inside fences protecting piers, "this kind of protection alone will not stop sabotage," Jenks wrote to his superiors in Washington.

"Unless proper precautions are taken, this and every other port will awaken some day to a horrible tragedy which could have been prevented by proper precautionary measures," he stated.

Jenks won the interest of his superiors and finally of Vice Admiral Russell R. Waeche, commandant of the U. S. Coast Guard.

A training school will be established within a few days.

Narberth Faces

defense jobs, could only get four hits off Smith, while Narberth pounded the veteran Howard Cates making his second pinch appearance on the mound, for 14 solid blows. Bill Potts led the winning attack with three hits, one of which was a double.

Two walks and an infield out after Smith had singled and Potts had doubled got Narberth off to a 2-0 lead in the third inning. The borough nine added a single marker in the fifth, then tallied three in the sixth and two in the eighth. Although he gave up nine bases on balls, Smith was steady in the pinches and didn't allow Manoa its lone run until the sixth.

Smith will be called upon to face the dangerous Irvin Collegians at Narberth on Sunday. The Collegians helped tighten the race by maintaining its jinx over Gladwyne, nosing out the league leaders, 2-1, at Gladwyne on Saturday. This marked the third straight victory for the Collegians over the Keynells and reduced their league lead to a single game and pulled the fourth place Collegians within two games of first place.

Johnny Burns outpitched Bill O'Donnell in giving the Collegians their narrow victory. He limited Gladwyne to five hits and blanked the leaders until the ninth. It was Burns' second triumph and O'Donnell's fourth setback.

John Blong's double scored Caravello with the Collegians' first run in the first inning and they chalked up what proved to be their winning tally in the sixth on singles by Gilmore and Irvin plus a sacrifice by Vendetta.

Brookline and Overbrook divided the season's first doubleheader, the Brooks winning the opener, 7-0, and the Lions the nightcap, 8-3. Both games were seven inning affairs staged on the Manoa diamond. Tommy Steuber turned in one of the season's brightest pitching performances when he held Overbrook to one hit in the first game. He also collected three of Brookline's six hits.

Overbrook broke a nine-game losing streak when it took the second game. Bob Brittingham was the winning hurler, having no difficulty after his mates gave him a 4-0 lead in the first two innings.

Inclement weather forced postponement of all the Sunday games.

Rev. M. B. Gurley Leaves For Summer

The Rev. M. B. Gurley, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, Cynwyd, will be in Nantucket, Mass. for the remainder of the summer. The Rev. Robert Newton Stretch, who is serving as chaplain at the Episcopal Hospital during August, will occupy the pulpit in his absence.

Rev. Stretch is a graduate of DePaw University, Greencastle, Ind. and of Senbury-Weston Theological Seminary, Evanston, Ill. He served for two years as curate for Bishop Craig Stewart of Chicago. Before coming to Philadelphia as a member of the faculty of the Philadelphia Divinity School, Rev. Stretch was at St. Luke's Church, Evanston, Ill.

CALLING THE TURN

REASON FOR DIFFERENCE

The $500 difference of the net sums raised in the Army and Navy relief baseball games here was due to the fact that one contest was put over as a community enterprise while the other was staged merely on its merits as a ball game.

Every community organization in Narberth got behind the Navy Relief game and thoroughly canvassed the town with tickets. They did such a good job that they sold twice as many tickets in advance of the game than all that were sold at the Army Relief game at Manoa.

Aside from the Boy Scouts, who made a belated ticket canvass of Manoa residents the day before the game, there was no pre-game community organization of ticket selling.

Considering this fact and the below normal attendance of Manoa's league games this season and the threatening weather, the crowd of more than 1000 Tuesday night was fairly gratifying.

Although the total amount of approximately $1000 raised for the two service funds was below its goal, the Main Line League and its followers can feel proud of its contribution to the war effort. It was a considerable better showing than made by many similar baseball organizations.

The refusal of Joe Kirkwood, the Abington pro, to wear a number on his back in the recent Tom O'Shanter golf tournament at Chicago was the height of something or other. When he was disqualified for his refusal it almost precipitated a strike of the other pros.

The whole thing was rather ridiculous. Kirkwood refused to wear the number on the grounds it would make him look like a "circus horse," inferring that to do so would hurt a "gentlemen's profession."

Wearing of the number was to help the fans identify the players and to stimulate the sale of programs, the receipts of the latter to be turned over to Army-Navy Relief. It was a condition of the tournament and we believe the tournament chairman was correct in disqualifying Kirkwood.

The wearing of numbers by athletes is accepted in almost every sport today. Surely a golf pro isn't any less the gentleman with a number pinned to his back. If anything, the refusal to wear a number makes him less so. Pro golfers should have enough intelligence to know that anything that helps the fan enjoy the sport is good for the game and those connected with it.

From all reports Sam Byrd, our Merion pro, didn't have any qualms about wearing a number in the tournament. It was old stuff for him. He wore one for years when he played in the outfield with the New York Yankees. And where do you find a finer gentleman than Sam Byrd.

HOW ABOUT IT?

The Mont-Del Catholic Baseball League has a rule which bars any player after he participates in a single Main Line League game.

However, both Jimmy Dykes, Jr. and his brother Charley are eligible to compete in the circuit, even though both had been competing in organized baseball until just recently.

How do they explain that one?

ON WAY UP

Keep your eyes on Diehl Mateer, of Ardmore Manor, one of the most promising young tennis players on the Main Line.

A student at Haverford High School, he was named to the junior boys Davis Cup squad and competed in the Western and national boys tournaments at Michigan and Indiana this week.

And, believe it or not, Haverford High School doesn't have a tennis team!

STILL SHARP SHOOTER

Private George Gaskill, former Upper Darby High athlete and Brookline basketball star in the Main Line League, shot a 77 to tie for medalist honors in a recent golf tournament at McChord Field, Washington.

Finn's Team Holds

Heart rival at Ardmore in another Thursday fray. Jimmy Dykes, who is waiting a call from the Navy Air Corps, was the hero, stealing home to score the deciding run after his single had plated Charlie Petron with the first tally of the inning.

Petron opened the frame by reaching second on a two-base wild throw. Dykes followed with a single to short, Petron scoring the tying run. Dykes went to second on the throw home, stole third, then beat Tom Whyte's throw home on another steal.

Almost everything, including a fight, occurred in the early part of the game during which the lead saw-sawed back and forth. The fight took place in the second and featured St. Denis' Watson and Sacred Heart's Bert Smith, both of whom were ejected from the game.

Frecks Turner turned in a four-hit performance to be credited with the win. Tom Whyte limited St. Denis to three safeties, but poor support undermined the excellent work of both hurlers.

Gladwyne Youth Tops Loop Hitters

Kucheruk Slugs Ball At .400 Clip; Main Rival Is Burns

Collecting 14 hits in his last 20 trips to the plate, George Kucheruk, Gladwyne outfielder, has taken over the batting leadership in the Main Line Baseball League.

Hitting a mere 250 a month ago, Kucheruk now has a fat .400 average. Participating in 18 games, the flycatcher for the league leaders drove out 26 hits in 65 times at bat to take the spotlight away from the more experienced players.

His main rivals are Al Cotton and Joey Burns, of Narberth, who are hitting .391 and .387, respectively. Burns is leading the league in most hits, 29, most runs, 20, and home runs, three.

Although Narberth is only tied for second place it has ten players hitting over .300, whereas first place Gladwyne has only two over this figure.

Walter Cantwell, Manoa, and Ray Presutti, Gladwyne rookie, share the pitching lead with four victories against one defeat. John Rorer, Narberth, and Tommy Steuber, Brookline, are setting the pace in strikeouts, each having fanned 46 batters.
